Nobel Prize given to German writer Boell

Leaving for Israel on Monday

STOCKHOLM. - Heinrich Boell, a war veteran whose writings exposed post-war Germany's way of life, yesterday became the first German novelist to win the Nobel Literature Prize since Thomas Mann 46 years ago. The 55-year-old West German novelist who became International Pen Club president last year, was cited by the Royal Swedish Academy for "his writing which through its com-bination of a broad perspective on his time and a sensitive skill in characterization has contributed to a renewal of German literature." The prestigious prize this year is worth 480,000 crowns ($98,100).

The two ministries together conducted the municipal elections held in the West Bank earlier this year. Relations between the authori-ties and Gaza Mayor Haj Rashad Shawa came to a crisis over the recent inclusion by the author-ties of the Shati refugee camp in the town's municipal boundaries and the military order to Gaza to provide the camp with all services. The municipality has so far rejected the order, stating that the camp should remain as it is until the Palestine refugee problem is settled politically. A definite yes or no about elec-tions in Gaza is likely only on Sunday, after the military au-thorities in the Strip meet the store women stormed counters where coloured candles were being sold for 18 new pence for three. Others posted signs: "Sorry, no candles." For the past two years Britons have endured the miseries of prolonged power blackouts, unheated homes and no electric power to cook meals. In December, 1970, a power workers' strike caused lengthy blackouts. Last February striking coal miners picketed power stations and again forced the Government to impose prolonged power cuts.

After management Wednesday rejected the pay demands by power workers, their union leader Frank Chapple said, "We were offered nothing." He said a walkout could come at any time.

Mr. Tweine said that he had got the information from the Lebanese Foreign Ministry and that all the Arab governments could confirm it. Request for Soviet artists to visit Israel

By DAVID LENNON

LONDON - Israeli orchestras and organizations have been requesting a British impreserio to intervene with the Soviet authorities to send Soviet artists to perform in Israel. This is at a time when Jews in Britain have been asking him to stop all dealings with the Russians in protest at the plight of Soviet Jewry.

Victor Hochhauser, the Jewish impresario who for the past 20 years has brought the finest Russian musicians to Britain, made this claim in a letter which is published in this week's "Jewish Co-server and Middle East Review." His letter is in reply to a critical editorial in the magazine last week calling on him to disassociate himself from a forthcoming festival of Soviet and Russian music, Virtually every major Jewish organiza-tion in Britain has issued a similar appeal.

Hochhauser points out that Israel plays chess with the Russians and sends scientific delegations to the U.S.S.R. "If the Government of the State of Israel and all other

Key to Nixon victory

By JACK HUSTON

WASHINGTON (FWF). AS the American presidential election battle enters its closing stages, both sides are putting on the pressures. A much-repeated McGovernite allegation — that Mr. Nixon said in 1968 he had a "section of the pressure of the ret plan" to end the war in Vietnam - has at long last been exposed in the press as misrepresent-ation. And the Democratic vicepresidential candidate, Sargent Shriver, said publicly in August that he "expected" the President to get a peace settlement before the election - a statement which was seen as a broad hint to Shriver's fellow campaigners to drop the Vietnam issue before it blew up in their

This has led to countercharges that Senator McGovern's proposed "cures" have deficiencies in sense and substance.

Meanwhile, another battle has been going on, mostly behind the scenes, between the Nixon and Mc-Govern organizations to register voters and bring supporters to the polls. This campaign by the backroom boys and girls on either side has assumed massive proportions.

Senator Mc-Govern could win the election if he got these four (or any three which included California) in addition to the 13 states which Humphrey carried in 1968 (New York, Pennsylvania, Texas, Michigan, Massachusetts, Maryland, Minnesots, Wa-shington, Connecticut, West Vir-ginia, Hawaii, Maine, Rhode Island) plus the District of Columbia.

Fluid phase

In the present, most fluid phase of the election campaign, anything can happen (even including further possible setbacks for McGovern).

If, however, the gap does narrow appreciably by November 7, it is thought that voters who are at present "undecided" could determine the final result, and certainly the extent of Mr. Nixon's victory (which most commentators hold to be probable even if his opponent does make up some ground).

Faced with what has been described as a choice between President Nixon's record of performance in office and Senator McGovern's promises of what he would do if elected, what will make the "don't knows" make up their minds? Will they be influenced by the muchdebated issues of the day, respond to what seems the more persuasive organization, or operate on an instinctive judgement of the "credibility" of the candidates?

Austrian Ambassador studied Hebrew

By LEA LEVAVI Jerusalem Post Reporter

MRS. Johanna Nestor — Austria's new ambassador to Isterested in this country when she was stationed at the Austrian Consulate in New York. One of her first contacts there was with Austrian-Jewish immigrants to the U.S. who came to the Con-sulate to get proof of age to qualify for Social Security retirement benefits.

"These were children of couples married by Hazzidic rabble at the time of the old Austrian empire — when these rabbis had no official state recognition," Mrs. Nestor says. "These children were considered born out of wedlock and there were no official documents kept - so the only proof of their birth, or of their rents' marriage, is what the rab-bl wrote in Ykidish. That was how I first saw Hebrew letters and became interested in them - and in Israel.

She was also impressed by the inter-faith understanding and co-operation which existed in New York at that time. "I remember a retreat I went to on Long Island where the priest told us Jews in the community had contributed to the church building fund. Who would ever dream of a thing like that in Europe?

After leaving New York in 1962, she returned to Austria for four years and took courses in Hebrew and Judaism at the university, while continuing her work at the Foreign Office. Her next assignment, however, was India — where she remained for six years, learning the vast country better than many Indians know it. 'In India, I felt the most important part of my work was to travel and see things. Here, I think my job will be mainly to learn and listen."

Jewish father

Though her experiences in New York and the courses she took in Austria were the catalysts, Israel and Judaism were not total strangers to her before then. Her father was born Jew-ish but converted to Catholicism when he married her mother. "My mother, interestingly enough, was always interested in Judaism and in learning more about it. Incidentally, most people don't realize this, but the thing that saved my father and the rest of us from Hitler was the fact that he was married to a Catholic, was himself converted and had a Catholic child."

At the end of World War II. Mrs. Nestor was left a widow with a four-year-old son, Her father had also died and one of his friends suggested that she think about going into the For-eign Service. "The first two times I applied, they turned me down because they hadn't had a woman diplomat before. The third time, I was accepted... Today. we have three women ambassadors and several other women in diplomatic posts — quite a liberal policy for a small country, I

Her first diplomatic post was in Frankfurt where she served (starting in 1949) in her country's liamon office to the American Righ Commissioner.

Asked about her plans in her new post, Mrs. Nestor said she would like to establish ties with Austrian Jewish immigrants "since they are our best link with Israel." She intends to work through the Austrian Immigrants' Association and to invite former Austrians to visit the Embassy on holidays and other special occasions. "And of course if any of them have matters to settle involving Austria, we are always here to help them." She is also concerned about Austria's role in helping Jewish immigrants from Russia, though site felt it best not to elaborate on that subject.

"I think our relations with Israel today are excellent I know it wasn't easy at the beginning and I'm very glad my predecessors did such excellent is not much different from being a man ambassador, she thinks. "Of course, I have m compare myself to a bachelor and not to a married ambassado -because an ambassador's wife can help him a great deal with entertaining and other duties. I think the only differences between myself and a bachelor is that people coming to a woman ambassador's residence expect better housekeeping than they do from a single man."

ISRAEL'S CHESS FAILURE

By ELIAHU SHAHAF

Jorusalem Post Chess Correspondent PHE Israel chess team gave a rather disappointing perfornance at the 20th world championhip held in Skopje, Yugoslavia this nonth, finishing 18th of 63 nalons. The women's team at the ifth Olympiad, held concurrently rith the men's event, did even worse, lacing 19th out of 23 nations.

In the preliminaries, Israel was nder the threat of going down to hals C (places $3-48), but thanks o its victories over Hongkong and falaysia, which netted 71/2 points, finally made it to finals B with 7 points out of a maximum 28,

In the finals, our team lost its irst encounter against the Philipines but made a fine recovery to in or draw all but the last of the ubsequent matches. With a half-oint lead over England before the inal round and with only a draw eeded to top its group, Israel lost he crucial match by 11/2-21/2, and rith 36½ points (out of a maxi-num of 56) took second place in

It was a far cry from the fine performance at the 1970 Siegen Olympiad, where our team was first in its group, placing 13th in a field of 60 nations.

The main cause of our failure to make it to finals A (and thus be sure of least the 16th place) was the poor performance of Israel champion Uzi Geller, who lost all of his three games in the preliminaries. Geller, who was originally named as the fourth board player, was promoted to third place after Y. Bleiman dropped out at the last mi-nute. In view of Geller's poor play in the Teheran Interzonal tournament and his relatively low place in the national rating list, it would cer-tainly be wiser to replace Bleiman with Amikam Balshan as the third board player. Balshan, just back from the Students' Olympics, was in top form and his excellent score in Skopje was a further proof of his great advantage over Geller.

In the finals Israel won nine matches (against Italy, Austria, Greece, Mongolia, Belgium, Indonesia, Canada, Iceland and Norway), lost two (against the Philippines and England) and drew three (with Colombia, Peru and Cuba).

This is quite a creditable result in Itself, and it was achieved mainly thanks to the excellent performance of Avraham Kaldor and Amikam Balshan, who went through the finals unbeaten.

The leader of the Israel team, International Master Shimon Kagan, who did very well in Siegen two years ago, was certainly not at his best in Skopje. He scored 7½ points out of 16 games (W.10 D.6) — $1.3 attaining 44 per cent, against 72 per cent in Siegen. Our second In-ternational Master, Yair Kraidan, improved his play considerably in the finals to achieve a total of 11½ points out of 18 games (W.7, L.2, D.9), or 64 per cent (69 in Siegen). Uzi Geller had the lowest score ever achieved by an Israeli play in any Olympiad 114 racki play in any Olympiad: 1½ points out of 7 games (W.1, L.5, D.1) — 21.4 per cent. Avraham Kaldor did very well to score 12½ points out of 16 games (W.10, L.1, D.5) — 78 per cent. Amikam Balshan was the best all-round player, with an excellent score of 13 points out of 16 games (W.10 D.6) -81.3 per cent. Shmuel Friedman justified his place in the national team by scoring 7½ points out of 10 games (W.6, L.1, D.3) — 75 per cent.

Of the women players, only Is-rael champion Lidia Gal did well, scoring 6 points out of 8 games, but it was not enough to save the team from one of the bottom

In assessing our performance in Skopje, there is one important factor which must not be overlooked: security. Going to Yugoslavia with the Munich disaster fresh in their minds and having to endure the strain of strict security measures for over three weeks, both at the hotel and in the playing hall, certainly had its effect on the team's morale. No player can be expected to produce his best under such con-

The U.S.S.R. won the event as expected, but by one of the lowest margins ever: only 11/2 points ahead of Hungary, Except for Helsinki 1952 and Siegen 1970, the world champions have always had a lead of 31/4 to 81/4 points over the runnerup. Moreover, the winners went into the lead only after the 10th round and were still in danger of losing the title before the final

SCOTLAND avenged their 1-0 defeat by Denmark in the European Championship in Copenhagen last year when they beat the Danes 4-1 on Wednesday in their World Soccer Cup group eight qualifying

But the Scots, who were two goals up in 20 minutes, were pulled back to a 2-1 lead before halftime nd had to wait until the last stag of the match before they could fully assert their superiority. In other World Cup qualifying rames Bulgaria trounced Northern Treland 3-0, in a rough game during which George Best was sent off, and U.S.S.R. beat Eire 2-1.

Former England goal ace Jimmy Greaves maintained his knack of scoring on first appearances by netting Tuesday night after three mi-nutes for Tottenham Hotspur in his testimonial soccer match against Fe-yencord of Holland. A crowd of 45,799 turned up to pay tribute and saw Spurs beat the Dutch visitors 2-1 with Ray Evans scoring the other home goal and Ressel replying for Feyencord.

Greaves, now 32, retired from football 18 months ago after a 14-year career with Chelsea, Inter Milan, Tottenham and West Ham. He 67 for England, including at least one goal on his debut at every level in all competitions from schoolboy

BOXING

THE World Boxing Commission handed down a 48-hour ultimatum Wednesday night to champion Joe Frazier and George Foreman to set a date for a heavyweight title fight. The ultimatum expires tomorrow and was one of the first measures taken by the W.B.C. convention which opened Thursday.

Disregarding the ultimatum would jeopardize Foreman's status as the number 1 challenger while enhanc-ing the position of Muhammad Ali, former champion. Ramon Velzaquez, president of the W.B.C., reported that letters to Frazier and Foreman had gone unanswered and the W.B.C. decided to send strongly worded telegrams to both boxers, their managers and associates. Frazier has rejected Foreman's views on the financial aspects of the fight. But the W.B.C. declared that Frazier must risk his crown not having done so with a recognized challenger in over a year. Bob Turley, a member of the W.B.C.'s executive committee, said he was inclined to give Ali a second chance to try to regain the crown from Frazier. He showed the conventor members a letter signed by Ali and his trainer, Angelo Dundee, in which All said he is willing to fight for the title "anywhere, any time."

FOOTBALL Scott Hunter fired a 15-yard touchdown pass to Leland Glass with 1:54 left on the clock and Chester Marcol booted the conversion, giving Green Bay a 24-38 vic-tory over the Detroit Lions Monday night and putting the Packers in sole possession of first place in the National Football Conference. Don McCafferty, who directed the Baltimore Colts to a Super Bowl title as a rookie head coach in 1970, was dismissed Monday by the National Football League team. The announcement came one day after the Colts dropped their fourth straight game in five season starts, the worst losing streak since 1962. McCafferty, 51, took over as head coach in 1970 after Don Shula left to become head coach of the Mismi Dolphins. McCafferty previously had been a Baltimore assistant coach

France gets its stone back

By RICHARD WALTER LONDON (Ofns). -

THE Rosetta Stone, one of the really great treasures of the British Museum, has been spirited out of Britain in conditions of the greatest secrecy. It is to be the centreplece of important celebrations at the Louvre in Paris to mark the the 150th anniversary of Jean-François Champollion's remarkable feat in deciphering the Egyptian hieroglyphs in-

The circumstances of it finally being loaned to France are all the more remarkable considering the way in which Britain first acquired this celebrated 8 cwt block of black basalt. The fact is, the British Army seized it in 1801 as war booty from the house of Napoleon's defeated but protesting commander-inchief in Egypt, the armed party bearing it away in triumph through the streets of Alexandria. It came as the final humiliating postscript to Napoleon's military ambitions in the Near East and many Frenchmen even today still question the justice of the British action. Napoleon's staff

When Napoleon invaded Egypt he took with him a special scientific staff, many of whom were made responsible for recording the country's outstanding antiquities. The French Ins-titute was founded in Cairo and when in July 1799 a French engineer officer named Bou-chard, who was building new fortifications at Rosetta on the Nile Delta, near Alexandria, unearthed this stone built into the wall of an old rampart it quickly caused a sensation.

The inscriptions, in three different texts — hieroglyphs, Egyptian demotic and Greek were copies of a decree issued at the corona-tion of Ptolemy V in 196 B.C.E. Since the Greek could be read its importance was realized. As the French experts rightly supposed, the stone gave three versions of the same text, thus making it possible to decipher the language of the Pharachs for the first time.

Napoleon himself displayed great interest in the stone and ordered that copies of it should be made and distributed to scholars over Europe. Two skilled lithographers, Citoyens Marcel and Galland, were brought specially to Cairo and, by covering the surface the stone with printers' ink, laying a sheet of paper upon it and delicately pressing the surface with rubber rollers, they succeeded in taking printed impressions of the texts.

'Private property'

Then came the military reverses and in 1801 the Treaty of Capitulation. Article XVI of the Treaty insisted that the Rosetta Stone and several other large and important Egyptian antiquities be surrendered to the British. The French General Jacques de Menou at first refused to comply, insisting that these works were all private property and that the Rosetta Stone itself belonged to him personally.

General Menou finally gave way and Major-General Sir Tomkyns Turner was ordered to take possession of it. With an armed detachment of artillerymen and a suitably strong vehicle he went to General Menou's house in Alexandria and carried off the stone.

Although the French lost the battle for the Rosetta Stone itself, they would be justified in claiming that it was they who finally won the race to decipher the hieroglyphic inscription on it. It was 20 years before it finally yielded up its secrets and then it was to the brilliant French scholar Jean-François Champollion, working entirely from those early ink impres-

When, earlier this year, the French raised the possibility of the loan of the Rosetta Stone to the special Champollion celebrations. the British Museum would have none of it and appeared outraged to have ever been asked to part with one of its proudest and most popular exhibits. French sensibilities were understandably hurt when they were offered a £36 plastic replica. Now the British Museum Trustees have relented. At the very last moment they secretly reversed their earlier decision and have allowed the Louvre to have the stone itself until the end of the year.

There is one thing the French are hardly likely to miss when the stone is finally unveiled in the Louvre this week. It now bears one further inscription that Napoleon never saw. On the rough left flank of the basalt block in two-inch-high white painted letters that neither time nor the British Museum has been able to erase runs the legend: "Captured by the British Army 1801."

Russian version of 'selection'

THE full barbarity of the Soviet Union's policy to-wards Russian Jewry and espe-cially those who are being denied the right to emigrate was re-vealed Wednesday when the Kremlin suddenly and at random rescinded the demand for the ransom tax from a group of some two dozen families.

The action coincided with the signing in Washington of an American-Soviet trade agreement which also included a settlement of the long-standing Russian war debt to the U.S. for the lend-lease equipment and sup-plies furnished by the Roosevelt Administration during World War Two.

War Two.

That treaty still requires approval by the U.S. Senate and House where many members, following Senator Henry Jackson's lead, have gone on record saying they would oppose ratification as long as the education that remains in force.

tax remains in force.
If the heavy-footed Kremlin move to release a score of families from the tax was designed as a gesture towards Washington and Western public opinion, it indicates the degree to which Russia's leaders are insensible to the nature of U.S. and Western attitudes. For the arbitrary and accidental release of a few reveals the inhuman trials and duress of the many.

It discloses the rule by fiat to which Soviet Jewry is sub-ject, the absence of ordered legal procedures which bind government and governed to pre-dictable patterns of behaviour and provide appeal from abuse, the absence, in other words, of what in the West are considered tuted an arbitrary policy of "selection," constantly changing and making more cruel the obstacles to emigration. Like the policy of selection which once sent Jews to death, the Russian version imposes a reign of ter-ror designed to dissuade Jews from seeking their freedom. Since the alternative to making a stab at release is to remain trapped in the Russian vise of Jewish suppression, Soviet Jewry today is ensnared by a vicious

Soviet Union.

The Egyptian-Soviet communique issued following Sidky's brief talks with Premier Alexel Kosygin and President Nikolai Pod-gorny had little to say about the specific course of future relations between the two countries except for emphasizing that the two sides would keep in touch to exchange views on matters of mutual interest.

Communique

Nevertheless, the communique reflected the Soviets' non-compromising insistence on the validity of the 17-month-old Russo-Egyptian 15-year treaty of friendship and cooperation in the face of Sadat's search for a "new framework of relations" between the two countries. The treaty, signed in the wake of Sadat's massive purge against his political foes in May, 1971, reflected Moscow's concern that Seviet-Egyptian relations cannot be left unagainst sudden domestic upheavals in Cairo.

RUSSIA TEACHES SADAT

A LESSON IN POLITICS

The two parties resolved at the time that the pact would be subject to renewal every five years. It could only be terminated if one of the two countries gave a year's notice — something which Sadat apparently ignored when he expelled the Russians last July and launched his search for a new basis to Cairo-Moscow relations.

In essence, the 15-year treaty pledges the two sides to a solid commitment towards cooperation in the political, economic, military, scientific, technical and cultural spheres.

Key article

The key article, eight, dealing with Soviet mulitary assistance, says: "In the interest of strengthening the defence capability of Egypt, the contracting parties will continue to develop cooperation in the military field on the basis of appropriate agreements between them, Such cooperation will provide specifically for assistance in the training of Egyptian military personnel, in mastering the armaments and equipment supplied to Egypt, with a view to strengthening its capacity to climinate the consequences of aggression, as well as in-creasing its ability to stand up to aggression."

This appears to be one of the provisions — concerning the consolidation of Egypt's "defences" — that the Russians insisted Sadat abide by at the time he was siring his accusations against the Soviet Union for failing to supply him with offensive weapons. Sedat also claimed the Egyptians were capable of maintaining and using these weapons without the presence of Soviet experts in his country. Other provisions in the part provided for consultations between the two sides in poltical matters affecting their mutual interests. In this respect Moscow had been irritated by Sadat's alliunces with Arab regimes known for their hostility to the Soviet Union, while Cairo fretted over the Russian-U.S. dialogue on the Middle East crisis. The Russians, on any Middle East agreement with Washington behind Cairo's back, but Sadat had been unable to deay his collaboration with the anti-Soviet elements in the Arab world. There is no indication that the Soviet emphasis on adherence to the 15-year pact means that it is willing to return to its former close relations with Egypt. The Russians seem their part, categorically denied having reached rather to be intending to teach Sadat a lesson in honouring signed agreements. Future action

All seems to depend now on Sadat's future course of action — while the Soviets are pressing home the point that the Egyptians need them more than they need Egypt by consolidating their presence in Iraq and Syria. Despite Sadat's apparently desperate bid to pay a fairly high price for reconciliation the partial return of the Russians to his country - the latter seem to be offering very little beyond cautious political, military and economic aid. The Soviets - together with the West - seem to have finally realized that Sadat is not the sort of statesman one can
